

3 handy knots

Most fisherman tie a knot where you turn the hook 4-5 times, put the tag through the bottom hole, back again through the loop and you're done. Don't! It's one of the worst knots in the industry. Use a Uni-Knot for lines directly to hooks.

The most efficient way to learn knots is to watch YouTube videos. There you'll find hundreds, but you'll find the 3 on this page to be the three you use the most.

A loop knot has become popular when using lures or plastic baits. It helps the bait move more loosely and look more natural. There are several variations, below is a basic-

Swivels are rarely used inshore. The line-to-line Uni Knot is one of the most dependable knots for tying fishing line to leader material or to fluorocarbon.
